

❑ What is the full name and age of the patient?

- Answer: The patient's name is Mr. Tan Ah Kow, and he is 55 years old.

❑ Who is the doctor, and how long has the doctor been treating the patient?

- Answer: The doctor is Dr. Tan Ah Moi, who has been treating the patient since November 2010.

❑ What is the patient's clinical history?

- Answer: Mr. Tan has a history of hypertension, hyperlipidemia, multiple strokes, cardiomyopathy, cardiac failure, and chronic renal disease. He also manifests behavioral and psychological symptoms secondary to dementia.

❑ What was the patient's demeanor during the examination?

- Answer: Mr. Tan's mood was euthymic, and he did not exhibit psychotic symptoms.

❑ Was the patient oriented to time, place, and person?

- Answer: Mr. Tan was partially oriented. He recognized his son and himself but could not accurately determine the date, time, or place.

❑ How is the patient's ability to perform basic arithmetic or recognize currency?

- Answer: Mr. Tan was unable to perform simple arithmetic or recognize notes and coins correctly.

❑ Does the patient have mental capacity in relation to personal welfare?

- Answer: No, the patient does not have the mental capacity to make decisions about his personal welfare.

❑ What is the doctor's diagnosis for the patient?

- Answer: The patient has dementia and a history of strokes.

❑ What is the patient's current living situation?

- Answer: Mr. Tan lives with his son, Ah Beng, in the son's flat.

❑ What is the doctor's opinion on the progression of the patient's condition?

- Answer: The doctor believes the patient's cognitive functions are unlikely to improve and will most likely deteriorate over time due to the nature of dementia.